MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

Summer greetings from 703 E. Churchville Road to all members of the John Carroll family!

Schools are communities of hope. We work with and guide students so that their highest hopes might be realized. We return each August with hope that our efforts on the kids' behalf during the new year will really matter. We pray and we hold out great hope for the future of our world, because of the qualities of the young people we send out from our classrooms.

“Schools are communities of hope. We work with and guide students so that their highest hopes might be realized.”

Some might say that for all of us joined together in the “hope business,” these are sad and especially challenging times. I am writing to you just days after the tragedies in Louisiana, Minnesota, and Dallas, a few short weeks removed from the Orlando massacre, and in the midst of what seems to be an unending reality of senseless killing, bitter prejudice and hatred, strident political divisiveness, and ever diminishing trust in anyone or anything that might bring resolution and peace. I awoke this morning to an Internet headline that asked the question, “Who can heal America?” With so many others, I'm left to wonder what has happened to Christ's message of compassion as taught through the parable of the Good Samaritan – which comprised the Gospel reading on a recent Sunday.

It may be only one piece of a very complex solution, but I will always believe that our very best hope lies in education, and in the capacity of our Patriots of all ages and millions of others like them, to leave their mark for good in all forms of human endeavor. The accomplishments of our wonderful Class of '16 included an unprecedented number of academic, athletic, and artistic awards and championships, and over $10 million in scholarships earned for their college studies. However, our newest alumni will probably be best remembered for their gifts of the heart. They demonstrated a unique sensitivity to and support for one another, and in total, devoted nearly 20,000 hours—double the required amount—in service of neighbor. In a society so hungry for uplifting news, it was no surprise that our seniors' commitment to reunite their Nigerian classmate with his mother after four years of separation drew attention from the national media.

There is a motto at John Carroll that also appears as one of the bumper stickers we distribute, and it reads simply, “Patriots DO.” You may have one of these on your car but if you don't, please write me and I will send you one. We want our students to take note that the sticker does not say “Patriots Don't Do,” nor “Patriots Wait for Others to Do.” The Class of '16 saw a need, and with determination and love, they provided funding to bring their friend's mother over 5,000 miles to his graduation. Patriots DO. Faith must be carried out in works. The pages that follow chronicle the works, the DOING, by many in our school family: Tom Kelso '70, entrepreneurial businessman, now sharing his talents at the state level, and as former JC Board Chair, someone who would routinely encourage us to “be bold” in setting a direction for the school's future. DiNetta Ingrassia Kerfoot '85, stepping up to lead a revitalized JC Alumni Association. Al Ward '70, devoting a lifetime to serve John Carroll students, and Wayne Rairigh '70, who through his generosity guaranteed that Al's contributions would be remembered always. And Dan Lynch '01 and Matt Pipitone '01, representing a new generation of leadership for the Alumni and Friends Golf Tournament, which sold out on a delightful day this past June.

In the same spirit of Patriots Do, our school will continue to move ahead in the upcoming year. You can look forward to news of the 2016 Strategic Plan, a national search for our new Principal, and fresh initiatives coming from the Office of Institutional Advancement, under Todd Sullivan's direction. Having successfully completed Phase I of the “Lighting the Way” Capital Campaign, we have also commissioned a feasibility study to determine next steps in support of the renovation of our academic spaces.

John Carroll has every intention of remaining in the “hope business.” We will continue striving to be a model of what can be accomplished through education in the fullest sense, and through the life work of those we educate. We will continue preparing our students with knowledge, skills, values, and the motivation to apply what they learn to end destructiveness and advance the greater good. On a daily basis, we will continue teaching them how to live in community and love their neighbor as themselves. Perhaps in those ways, we are doing what we reasonably can to address the larger and deeper ills, and to bring healing and hope.

May we all work for peace in these times and always.

Happy reading, and go Patriots!

Richard J. O'Hara, President and Interim Principal

RUNNING ONE OF MARYLAND'S ECONOMIC ENGINES

Tom Kelso '70 is managing best-in-class stadiums and investing in Maryland's future as Chairman of the Maryland Stadium Authority.

When Tom Kelso '70 packed up his car and left for a new business venture in Ocean City, Maryland, he wasn't sure how he was going to pay back the $18,000 he and a friend, Ed Ellis, borrowed from their friends, but he was determined to do so. Working for Exxon, Ed saw an opportunity in the gasoline industry and was looking for someone with whom he could go into business. Tom had a steady job as the business officer of the Evening College and Summer Session Division at Johns Hopkins University, but he was ready to make a bold move that would help define his career.

The two business partners started Ocean Petroleum Company with one gas station in Ocean City and then quickly started seeing success and building and acquiring more. Once they were large enough, they approached Exxon for a contract to distribute gasoline themselves. Exxon turned them down, but pointed them in the direction of a distributor who could be interested in selling his contract. "We offered him $50,000 that we didn't have and agreed to sell him product at cost for as long as he wanted to stay in business," Tom Kelso said, smiling. He knew it was a risk, but the two young entrepreneurs also knew that this contract was the ticket to taking Ocean Petroleum to the next level. It was. Ocean Petroleum would grow to have a distribution of 20 million gallons of gasoline per year.

After the ups and downs of being in the gasoline business in the 1970s and 80s, Tom knew it was time to step away in 1991 when new federal regulations and pressure from Exxon were going to require a significant amount of reinvestment just to stay in business. "There were good years and not so good years. We just battled and ended up being successful. It was a true start-from-nothing story," remarked Kelso.

Since his partner wanted to stay in the gasoline business, Kelso sold him his part of the company and prepared himself for new opportunities. He found them—first as a Principal at Kennilworth Holdings, Inc., where he mainly worked with companies in the petroleum or convenience store industries, advising clients on mergers and acquisitions, corporate restructurings and private placement of debt and equity.

He moved to Matrix Capital Markets Group in 1997, where he is currently the Managing Director & Principal, Head of Downstream Energy & Retail Group. This new group was perfect for Kelso to start and head up, since downstream energy includes the actual processing, selling and distributing of oil-based products, and he himself had previously sold his petroleum company. "I really understood not just the financial side of things but the psychological end too. We are shepherding people through a very difficult and emotional process," Kelso said. "In the end, they want to know that they got what the company is worth, but they are also worried about their employees, the company's reputation and the future of the business."

Helping his clients has been one of Kelso's benchmarks for success. "You've got to find the reward in really creating something that benefits more than just yourself," he said. Not only does Kelso help his clients, but he has been helping others by his service on various boards including John Carroll's. He served on the Board of Trustees and was the first alumnus to become Chairman of the Board. "[Being the first alumni Chairman] made that role more important to me personally than other roles that I have had in the past. The personal connection I had was so close." Borrowing from the narrative of his successful business career, Kelso urged the Board to make bold steps to help position John Carroll, not just for the next five years but for the next 75 years.

Serving as a board Chair once again, this time with a think tank in Baltimore called the Maryland Public Policy Institute, led to a working relationship with another board member, Larry Hogan, before he was Maryland's Governor. Their relationship grew, and once he was elected Governor, Hogan appointed Kelso as Chairman of the Maryland Stadium Authority. A State agency, the Maryland Stadium Authority (MSA) owns and leases Oriole Park at Camden Yards and M&T Bank Stadium. The MSA partners with the Orioles and the Ravens to deliver one of the best fan experiences in the country.

Being Chairman of the MSA is not a paid position, but it does come with its perks. Kelso has a badge that will get him into either stadium whenever he wants. His favorite place in Oriole Park is Eutaw Street. "I like the feel of it before games, I like the feel of it after games and I like the feel of it during games. It's a great environment for social interaction," Kelso said. He hopes to provide more opportunities for social interaction in the stadium and attract even more fans. "What they did in center field was a big help," he added, nodding to the new Roof Deck concept that features outdoor lounge seating overlooking center field and Eutaw Street. "It's a more unstructured way to be at the ballgame where you don't have to come sit in the same seat for three hours."

Although the Maryland Stadium Authority was created to build Oriole Park at Camden Yards, there is more to the MSA today than being the leasing agent of two of the nation's best stadiums. The agency helped bring the Ravens to Baltimore, and after it built a strong reputation for managing construction projects on time and on budget, the MSA was asked to take many more large-scale construction projects throughout Maryland, including the refurbishment and expansion of the Baltimore Convention Center, Ocean City Convention Center, Hippodrome, and new buildings at many of Maryland's universities. Performing economic impact studies after each of their projects, the MSA has proven to be a well-oiled economic engine for the State of Maryland.

"You've got to find the REWARD in really creating something that benefits more than just yourself."

-Tom Kelso '70, Chairman of the Maryland Stadium Authority

Much like in his business career, Tom Kelso is thinking long-term about the City of Baltimore with his current project with the MSA: building up to 28 schools in Baltimore by 2020. "It is going to be transformational for Baltimore City," Kelso said. "It's not going to fix all the problems, but when you visit the schools, you realize that it is very difficult to have the kind of instructional programs that are necessary." Kelso has a passion for education, and the schools project was ultimately what drew Kelso to the position with the MSA.

The education he received from the dedicated faculty at John Carroll helped spark this passion. Kelso recalled three faculty and staff members in particular who taught him lessons he still thinks about and builds on today. "Father Riepe was an incredible influence in my life," Kelso stated, speaking of the President, Principal and Chaplain of John Carroll when he was a student. "He really taught me the value of leadership. All too often, leaders want to lead today to get you to tomorrow. Just about all of us can get you to tomorrow. What Fr. Riepe was really good at was picking a point out that was so far distant in the future and saying, 'I am going to lead us there.'"

A three-sport athlete, Kelso learned the value of hard work and determination from Football Coach Gerry Gray. "He would always tell us that the difference between winning and losing is by about that much," Kelso said, as he held his thumb and pointer finger an inch away from each other. "I have taken that to heart in my life. Sometimes you just have to outwork the other person."

Kelso's favorite teacher was the one who challenged him the most: English and music teacher, Sister Joseph Annetta. He did very well in her class and was surprised when his parents came home from a parent teacher conference and were upset with him. They told him that Sister Joseph said that he was not living up to his potential. The next day, he approached her about the comment. "She told me, 'For you, just good enough is never good enough. You live just good enough.' It took me two decades to really understand what she meant, but she meant that you can go and do things that you don't think you can do if you just push yourself and are determined enough." The most important honor that Tom has received from John Carroll was being asked to be a pallbearer at Sister Joseph Annetta's funeral.

As a student at John Carroll in the late 60s, Tom Kelso never thought that one day he would impact the lives of so many people as a leader and an entrepreneur, but with the help of his teachers and family, he has been able to take bold steps to build a solid career and give back to his community. Recently, he had the opportunity to speak to John Carroll's Entrepreneurial Exploration classes, part of the new Financial Literacy and Entrepreneurial Exploration (FLEX) Program. "I told them if money is your only goal, you're always going to be miserable because you're not going to have enough. That can't be your benchmark for success. Look at the lives you influence. Look at the people you help. Look at all the good things that have come from what you have done. The jobs you've created, the families you helped support." It is safe to say that Tom Kelso is excelling in every one of his benchmarks for success.

Q&A with the Chair of the Alumni Association, DiNetta Ingrassia Kerfoot '85

As a student, who was your favorite teacher?

I have to say my favorite teacher was Mrs. Jane Michael, my Spanish teacher. She always made learning fun and demonstrated a true dedication and love for her students as well as her job. One of my fondest memories was when our daughter Gianna, who also had Mrs. Michael for Spanish, took in a picture to Mrs. Michael of her and me when our class traveled to Cancun, Mexico! It made us both feel a little old, but brought back some great memories!

Why did you choose to get involved with John Carroll as an alumna?

I wanted to get re-connected with the community and family of John Carroll that I was fortunate enough to have experienced during my high school years. I wanted my children to have the opportunities and blessings I did to attend John Carroll and hopefully take away as much as I did from that experience.

How many of your kids have you sent to John Carroll? How did you decide that John Carroll was the right fit for them?

Three so far! Our oldest daughter, Gianna, graduated from JC in 2014, our youngest daughter, Karson, will be a junior this year and our son, Zachary, will be a freshman this year. I did not decide JC was the right fit for them, they decided themselves! I like to believe that they have grown up seeing and learning about John Carroll from myself, their siblings and the community in general to the point where it made JC the obvious right fit for them. Needless to say, we were thrilled with their decisions!

What can we expect from the Alumni Association this year?

I think you can expect lots of fun, new ideas, involvement and surprises from the Alumni Association this year. We hope to enhance the "Once a Patriot, always a Patriot" mentality and to create and foster a spirit of alumni involvement in John Carroll by supporting its mission and philosophy of Catholic education through positive alumni relations.

DiNetta Ingrassia Kerfoot '85

Meet the Director of Advancement, Todd Sullivan

Dear Patriot Nation,

It is a pleasure to introduce myself to all of you in a formal way. My first six months as Director of Institutional Advancement have given me a great opportunity to meet with or speak to so many wonderful Patriots. Whether long-time alumni, current parents, recent graduates or current students, the passion for this school is infectious.

We want to tap into your passion for John Carroll and engage you in a way that matters most to you, whether it is in STEM, international studies, fine arts, business, theatre, sports, sharing your faith or other areas. Engaging you does not always have to mean asking for money!

You have the opportunity to help shape the future leaders of our community by sharing your time and life experiences with our students. Be a guest speaker, evaluate a Senior Project, volunteer at an event or come up with your own idea to be involved! Give us a call or shoot me an email and we can get started. During my time here, I have witnessed the incredible generosity of members of our Patriot family who give of their time, talents and treasures to support our students and help them grow, and we are always looking for more Patriots to help us carry on the great John Carroll tradition!

As the summer rolls by we are busily preparing to launch the next phase of our ambitious and critical Capital Campaign to bring our 52-year-old academic building into the 21st Century in every way. Stay tuned for more information on that effort in the months to come.

We are also spending the summer setting up dates for more alumni events locally and around the country. We are appreciative of DiNetta Ingrassia Kerfoot '85 and her leadership as the Chair of our Alumni Association. If you have any suggestions for events, please let me know and I will pass them on to DiNetta!

On a personal note, my wife Wendy and I live in Churchville, Maryland with our three boys, Connor (11), Aiden (8) and Brady (7). We are parishioners at St. Margaret's Catholic Church. With the little bit of free time I have, I can often be found on a field coaching baseball and soccer.

I am excited to be part of the John Carroll family and look forward to meeting or speaking with you soon. If you live outside of Maryland and would like to host a regional alumni event, please let me know!

Al Ward's Classroom Named in His Honor

Thanks to Wayne Rairigh '70 (left) and the Dorothy R. Rairigh Family Trust, Room 105 will forever be known as the Alvin P. Ward '70 Room. After hearing that Al Ward (right) had taught math in the room for 38 years, Wayne knew he wanted to name the room in his classmate's honor!

Tim Perry Wins Educator of the Year Award

A favorite in the classroom and on the field, the student body has selected Mr. Tim Perry as the 2016 Educator of the Year! He retired in the spring of 2016, after 21 years teaching and coaching at John Carroll.

Eddie Hopkins '75 Wins Riepe Award

Being awarded the highest honor bestowed upon alumni by John Carroll, Eddie Hopkins '75 has won the Charles K. Riepe Alumni Award. His community service started during his time at John Carroll, when he began volunteering at the Bel Air Volunteer Fire Company. He has continued to serve there for 42 years and even served as the Fire Chief for two of those years. Professionally, Hopkins entered the Harford County police force, where he served for 31 years and retired as a lieutenant in 2003. For 12 of those years, he was the Director of Public and Media Relations and Chief Spokesman for the Harford County Sheriff's Office. Currently, he is serving Harford County as the Director of Emergency Services.

As the Riepe Award recipient, Eddie Hopkins had the opportunity to address the Class of 2016 at the 49th annual commencement exercises. In his remarks, Hopkins spoke of his admiration of Father Riepe and the teachers who were influential in his life, and he emphasized the importance of building a strong community like the one at John Carroll. He had this advice for the senior class: "As you move forward in all the stages of your life, never forget that each interaction, each deed, no matter how big or how small, may be helping to shape another and that is an essential and often unrecognized building block for a community."

Nominate a Patriot! We are now taking nominations for the 2017 Riepe Award at johncarroll.org/riepeaward.

Special thanks to Archivist Ed Miller for coordinating many of the updates found in this section.

Class of 1968

Ralph Romanelli has been working, earning a Ph.D., teaching, inventing and designing systems in the field of computer science. He and his wife, Glorianna, are the proud parents of Christina, Mathew and Alice. Ralph's professional life has taken him to all ends of the earth, including a tour of six months in the Green Zone in Baghdad, providing computer services to Ambassador Bremmer, who was then running the country. Ralph treasures his time with his granddaughters.

Class of 1970

Michael Dudley Greer¹ and his former wife Diane Herwig have four adult children and nine grandchildren, ranging from 1 to 18 years. Dudley remarried in 2015. He and his wife Marian live in Charles Village. Dudley is 20 years + into his second career as a licensed clinical social worker and works full time for Health Care Access Maryland.

Class of 1971

Derek McGuirk and his wife Susan are restoring an old house in a marsh on the Eastern shore of Maryland. They are the proud parents of their three children. Audrey '06 is living and working in Annapolis as a marketing specialist for a design firm. Mairead '09 is a physical therapist assistant in Hunt Valley and planning to become a nurse practitioner. Their youngest, Patrick '12, is a senior at Washington College. Derek played in the annual Old Timers Lacrosse Game for the 35th to 40th time.

Al Stampone is in his 41st year as a supervisor of maintenance for a rental management company. He supervises around 70 people and owes his success to his experiences in sports and coaching. He is in good health and tries to stay in shape by working out in his gym. Sports for him are now the occasional golf game and the very competitive lunch time ping pong matches at work.

Class of 1972

Jan Scopel is heading up the Annapolis Traditional Dance Society monthly dance and concerts and still plays music (jam and gigs) and performs and teaches clog dance regionally. She is also the facilities manager at a historic house of Annapolis that has provided housing to senior women since 1880, the Chase House, built by Supreme Court Justice Samuel Chase.

John Sullivan and wife Soubi recently became proud grandparents. Maighdlin '01 and her husband Adam brought their grandson Royal Kelly Ponder into the world on December 21, 2015.

Mary Kate '02 got married in January of 2015 and resides in Rockville, Md. working at the University of Maryland, College Park.

Class of 1973

Mike Klein³ and his wife of 35 years are proud parents of two sons, Jacob and Samuel, who are co-founders with others of the Harlem Lacrosse and Leadership Organization. Many young men from this organization went on to prep schools, earning scholarships to eastern institutions and universities. Jake is completing his MBA at Johns Hopkins in 2016. Sam graduates from Brown University Medical School in 2016. Mike's wife Clara devotes her energies toward various volunteer organizations. Mike Klein is co-founder and co-owner of Klein's Shop Rite of Maryland. Mike continues the generous practice of the entire Klein family of promoting and supporting educational and charitable institutions throughout Maryland.

Fred Hatem is an attorney and approaching his 16th year as a Family Magistrate with the Circuit court of Harford County. Fred and wife Carol just celebrated their 34th anniversary. Carol works at the Court House. Their oldest son Greg '05 is the owner of a store in Hampden called Bazaar, which sells oddities and curiosities. Greg is continuing with his music and his band, Natural Velvet. Their youngest, David '09, recently moved to Oregon where he works in marketing. He continues to run and recently participated in a half-marathon in Yerevan, Armenia.

Bill Kelso has been married to his wife Leslie for 32 years and has two sons. One is 25 and works for Uber Corporate in D.C. The other just graduated from college and is working in South Africa for Grass Roots Soccer in Aids/HIV education and prevention. Bill works for a small company that produces and sells lawn fertilizer and weed control products.

Mary Zukauskas writes: "I went to the University of Maryland, Eastern Shore and obtained my master's in teaching of fine art, and taught in Caroline County Public Schools. I have raised two fine sons and a daughter. Currently, I am living in New Jersey employed with a contractor for the Department of Defense for the Navy—Naval Air Defense at Lakehurst New Jersey."

Class of 1975

Brian Gaeng² has been a career banker for the past 36 years. He writes, "I recently completed the sale of Blue Ridge Bank, a Frederick headquartered community bank I helped start in 2008, to Revere Bank, the 7th largest bank headquartered in Maryland. I have been married for 32 years to my wife Roxie, and we have six children — four girls, two boys and six grandchildren. Two of our children are head coaches at the college level. Our youngest daughter, Gail, will be the last to graduate from college this spring with a business degree from the University of Illinois. She was a four-year starter and senior captain of the women's wheelchair basketball team at the University of Illinois and follows in the footsteps of her siblings who all played collegiate sports. She is also the starting point guard for Team USA and will compete this summer at the 2016 Para Olympics in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil."

John Hmelnicky writes that he lives close enough to John Carroll that he can hear the football games. John and his wife Ruth are busy raising their four children. Ruth is a teacher in the county. John's career is in the financial services industry. When asked to share a special basketball memory with us, John recalls the great out-of-conference games with guns in the county: Dudley Bradley (Edgewood), Cordell Jackson and Steve Barstow after he transferred to JC from Bel Air, Lionel Perkins (Havre de Grace), Mike Allen (Aberdeen), Maceo Leatherwood (West Nottingham) and others. According to Mr. Ed Miller, John Hmelnicky was one of the finest basketball players ever to play in Harford County.

Laura Larney Lang is now the director of schools for the Healey Education Foundation. The Healey Education Foundation invests in the sustainability and growth of Catholic Elementary and High Schools. Laura's daughter, Olivia, a senior at JC, continues to uphold the great Larney tradition in the performing arts at JC. She is the 13th member of the Larney family (Blacks, Greigs, Ruanes) to receive a JC ring.

Mark Meeks⁵ retired in 2015 after teaching math and chemistry for 25 years, including assignments at John Carroll and in California, Italy, Kuwait, Syria and Hungary. Now he splits his time between the San Francisco area, where he sings in the Russian Cathedral Choir, and the town of Cefalu in Sicily. He still loves studying foreign languages, especially Arabic, which he finds very challenging.

Mike Pons owns/operates Country Life and Merryland Farms with his brother, Josh '72. His wife Lisa Hyman Pons retired from Harford County Public Schools after 31 years of teaching special needs children. Mike and Lisa are proud parents of Philip '06, graduate of Elon University, Elizabeth '08, graduate of Villanova University and David '10, graduate of Towson University. There are 17 John Carroll graduates between the Pons and Hyman immediate families.

Alice Hopkins Puckett⁶ will start her first season this fall as the field hockey coach at John Carroll. Previously, she had been teaching and coaching at Fallston High School since 1983. She taught for 33 years and coached field hockey for 29 years, basketball for 17 years and tennis for six years. Alice also currently coaches for the club field hockey team, H2O, and will be working for the Arena Club concentrating on private and group field hockey lessons. On top of all that, she continues to work on the family farm for her brother Dave Hopkins '75, owner of Hopkins Produce. She and her husband, Mark, have two children, Andy and Lindsey.

Lieutenant General (Retired) Mark Ramsay⁴ and his wife Patty are enjoying retired life in western Pennsylvania after 33 years and 15 household moves in the Air Force. They recently moved into a new home in Windber, Pennsylvania. Last fall Mark was hired by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) as one of fourteen retired two, three and four star generals and admirals to serve as "senior mentors." In this role, he and his colleagues spend about three to four months each year helping prepare current leadership in the various NATO military headquarters for future operations. As a NATO senior mentor since October, Mark has traveled to Portugal, Belgium and Germany, and during the remainder of 2016 will mentor in Italy, Belgium and Norway. Mark plans to continue his part time role serving NATO until 2021.

Starting Legacies

Did you know that there are 129 alumni who are currently sending their sons or daughters to John Carroll? Kate Bruggeman '93 (pictured above) and her husband Kevin Bruggeman '89 are sending their daughter Ellie to John Carroll this year.

"John Carroll has given us a foundation for a great education and social interactions to succeed in life. We look forward to a wonderful experience for our own daughter, Ellie, to make lasting friends, enjoy the next four years, and achieve the highest possible education."

- Kevin Bruggeman '89
Kate Nicodemus Bruggeman '93

Congratulations! The class of 2016 collectively earned over $10 million in scholarships and dedicated 19,716 hours of service. The 176 graduating seniors will be attending 94 colleges in 21 states and around the world. Photo credit: Mark Ionescu '95

Honoring Archbishop John Carroll
On December 3, the 200th anniversary of the death of Archbishop John Carroll, a group of students, faculty, staff and community members traveled to the Basilica of the National Shrine of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary to celebrate John Carroll's life. Archbishop William Lori celebrated a special Mass in the crypt of the Basilica with the JC community and honored John Carroll by placing a wreath at his tomb.

Seniors Selected to Serve as Legislative Pages
After a rigorous application process, Kishan Patel '16 and Will Bolton '16 were selected to represent Harford County in the prestigious Maryland State Page Program. Patel and Bolton had the opportunity to spend two non-consecutive weeks working with state delegates in Annapolis this spring.

The Patriot Student Newspaper Earns Local and National Awards and Rankings
This past school year, The Patriot student newspaper racked up 18 individual student work awards and three local and four national awards or ratings for the newspaper as a whole. The national awards and ratings included a Columbia Scholastic Press Association Silver Crown for a hybrid publication, a Gold Medal and All-Columbian honors for the print and digital editions from the Columbia Scholastic Press Association, an All-American Rating for the print edition from the National Scholastic Press Association and a Distinguished Site ranking from Student Newspapers Online.

Remembering the Holocaust
One of John Carroll's signature events is Holocaust Remembrance Day, where seniors hear first-hand experiences from people who lived through the Holocaust. In an article for the student newspaper, The Patriot, Kelly Foulk '16 wrote this about her interactions with Holocaust survivor Bluma Shapiro: "Bluma is the most amazing and remarkable person I've ever met...Being able to speak to someone who has survived the Holocaust was truly an irreplaceable experience. Throughout the day, I was continually blown away by how happy and carefree Bluma was. She is happier than almost everyone I know, despite living through an experience as scarring as the Holocaust...Prior to meeting her, I had only read about the Holocaust in books or seen pictures in museums. From Bluma, I was able to hear bits and pieces of daily life that made this event a clearer image. I wouldn't trade the experience for anything."

Patriots Named Baltimore Sun All-Metro Players of the Year

Class of 2016 Makes National News

Felicia Ikpum is escorted by her son, Mike Tertsea '16, to receive the gift from the John Carroll community that brought her to the United States from Nigeria to see Mike graduate. She hadn't seen him in four years.

Did you see the generosity of the Class of 2016 on CBS This Morning? If you missed that, maybe you caught the story in The Washington Post, The Huffington Post, or CNN.com.

Everyone was talking about John Carroll's Class of 2016, who took action when they saw a classmate in need. Michael Tertsea, an international student from Nigeria, hadn't seen his mother since leaving for the United States when he was starting school as a freshman at John Carroll. When members of his class found out that she was not going to be able to come to the United States to see her son graduate, they rallied together and raised $1,700 to get her here. This was $500 short of the total costs, but hours after hearing about the situation, the faculty and staff covered the rest and even had a surplus to present to Mike's mother, Felicia Ikpum. Visa, airfare, food, lodging, everything was covered for the trip, which was Ms. Ikpum's first time on an airplane. She and Mike both expressed their gratitude to the JC community at the Baccalaureate Mass before Graduation. They do not know when they will see each other next, but they will be cherishing the time they just spent together forever, courtesy of the John Carroll community.

Mike Tertsea '16 (top) is grateful for his classmates Kishan Patel, Joe Kyburz and Katie Sullivan, who were instrumental in raising $1,700 to bring his mother from Nigeria to their graduation ceremony.

The JV lacrosse team beat Curley 19-6 for the MIAA B Conference Championship.

In the MIAA B Conference Track & Field Championship, the Patriots racked up 232 points to take the title, more than double the runner-up team, Pallotti.

1. Academic Team Repeats as Harford County Champions in a Sudden Death Overtime Victory.

With the Harford County Championship on the line, would you be able to come up with the answer to this question? "Notes with frequencies of 264 and 528 hertz are an example of what 'perfect' interval, an example of which is a C and the C eight notes?" The answer, given by Drew Forthman '18, was perfect octave. This gave the Patriots back to back Harford County Academic Challenge Championships!

2. The varsity football team completed their 12-0 undefeated season with their 35-14 victory over Curley in the MIAA B Conference Championship Game.

3. On a last-second three by Baltimore Catholic League (BCL) Tournament MVP and BCL Regular Season Co-Player of the Year Immanuel Quickley, the varsity basketball team defeated Mount Saint Joseph 51-50 in the BCL Tournament Championship.

4. In the Interscholastic Equestrian Association's National Finals, Kayla Maxwell '19 (center) earned a ribbon placing 8th in the country in the Junior Varsity Over Fences Individual Competition. Selina Petronelli '17 (left) and Coach Dennise Petronelli (right) supported Kayla as she competed in Lexington, Kentucky.

5. The varsity field hockey team won back-to-back IAAM B Conference Championships and capped off an undefeated in-conference season with their 1-0 victory over Maryvale.

6. Sophomore Lily Chen had an undefeated 8-0 season to become the IAAM B Conference Badminton Singles Champion.

7. In indoor track, Stephen Kutcher '17 cleared 12 feet in the pole vault to win the MIAA title, and with a leap of 5-0, Holly Driver '16 won the IAAM high jump competition.

Never trailing in the game, the varsity lacrosse team dominated Glen Elg 17-9 to repeat as MIAA B Conference Champions.

Creating Tomorrow's Entrepreneurs with FLEX Program

Taking their learning outside the classroom, students in JC's Entrepreneurial Exploration class have visited places like the Under Armour headquarters, Oriole Park at Camden Yards, the Maryland Department of Commerce and the integrated marketing agency R2 Integrated.

Don't be surprised if one day you see John Carroll alumni or even students on an episode of the entrepreneur investment show, Shark Tank. John Carroll's newest academic program, Financial Literacy and Entrepreneurial Exploration (FLEX), is giving students the business smarts to develop their own products and services and make an impact in the world.

Starting with a required Financial Literacy class in their sophomore year, students learn things they may never otherwise learn about until or even after college. With topics like credit, taxes, insurance, mortgages, investing and money management, the base knowledge is laid for students to make smart decisions about both their personal and business finances.

In either junior or senior year, students can take an elective Entrepreneurial Exploration class to learn how to innovate and then develop a business plan around that innovation. With a steady stream of guest speakers and field trips to businesses, students receive a wealth of real world experience. The class ends with a capstone project where they pitch their business concepts and social ventures to a panel of guest judges, just like the show Shark Tank. Winners are selected to move on to compete in the Diamond Challenge, hosted by the University of Delaware. Entrepreneurial Exploration students can also choose to dual enroll at both the University of Delaware and Harford Community College for the opportunity to earn a total of nine college credits.

The FLEX Program Coordinator is Mr. Larry Dukes, who brings over 30 years of business experience to the FLEX Program. He is currently the owner of Blackhorse Golf and a Menchie's Frozen Yogurt franchise. He is also the managing principal of Aurum Consultants. For Michael Imbierowicz '16, Mr. Dukes was the best part of his Entrepreneurial Exploration class: "My favorite part about the class was having such an experienced business entrepreneur to teach us about everything there is to know about starting a business. Mr. Dukes has more real-life experience with small business than anyone else I have ever met. He was always happy to share his life stories about his successes and his failures with all of his business ventures."

For more information on the Financial Literacy and Entrepreneurial Exploration Program at John Carroll, visit johncarroll.org/flex.

The team of Drew Isenock '16, Mikenzie Smith '16 and Joe Rayman '17 recently won first place out of 217 high school teams in the Maryland Stock Market Game. They invested $100,000 in the simulation and got close to a 6% return after four months! This team and other teams from JC competed in the challenge as part of John Carroll's FLEX Program.
